

Prostate Pleasure Questionnaire Results

by Liberty

Thanks to all who participated,
I'm able to present these results to you.

- Last year I handed out approximately 100 questionnaires to various populations, I received an overwhelmingly positive verbal response. Approximately 5 people commented that this is a topic they explore professionally, or research. Few of those who wanted to mail or E-mail them in actually returned them, but I did receive 47 personally. They are filled out to various degrees: some minimally, others with much detail. I've learned much in the process and when I do the next round of questionnaires, I'll have more topics to cover.
- I'm Liberty. I'm a Prostate Pleasure activist and I'm pleased to present these questionnaire results to you.

The overall goal of the questionnaire is to gather diversity of sexual experience and preference, Especially in regards to the prostate, 'female' ejaculation and other underexplored realms of sexuality.

- The main topics explored and the names of the six sections of the questionnaire are:
 - 1) Prostate/G-Spot Health,
 - 2) Genital mutilation/Body modification,
 - 3) Prostate/G-Spot Pleasure,
 - 4) 'Female' Ejaculation,
 - 5) 'Female' Erectile tissue/Internal
 - 6) 'finishing up' (where people added what they wanted.)

A Youthful Alternative

Female Ejaculation & The G-Spot

Surfing the more adult part of the net, why is it that it's so hard to find images of women actually enjoying their own sexuality? How often have you come across an image showing an actual female orgasm?

It seems the porn industry as a whole, busy as it is exploring every imaginable and unimaginable fetish, has forgotten a few rather fundamental basics - it's so caught in it's own traditions and conventions. Sure, you're likely to bump into some really weird stuff if you dig deep enough - nothing lacking on the artificial side, but what about new angles and ideas regarding real sex? Real sex, real excitement (especially female excitement) just doesn't seem to be an issue. Would it sell less? I don't think it would, since I know for a fact that many prefer to see the real thing rather than watching Ken ritually ejaculating in Barbie's tired face.

I personally would have Barbie shooting in Ken's face if anything, that would at least prove a bit interesting. And I'm not talking watersports here...

The concept of female ejaculation (FE) is a sadly forgotten one in this enlightened society of ours. Ancient civilisations recognized and celebrated this phenomenon, and even today there are so called third-world cultures where the young woman is initiated into the art of ejaculating. But let's say an alien visitor was to conduct a study on modern human sexuality, based on what visual material he found on the internet, the great pool of knowledge, where most things are supposed to be revealed... My bet is that he would be likely to miss FE altogether. There is a chance he'd stumble upon the alt.binaries...female-ejaculation newsgroup, but he would probably conclude that the female face is a reproductive organ, judging from the images found there.

| the missing fetish

However, if you know what to look for, eager investigations may prove fruitful, but not abundantly so. The FE images are hardly ever artistic - the files are small, and usually badly focused directly between the woman's legs. Not at all depicting a major sexual event, or the pleasure of it... Nor is there much of scientific value to be found...

I recently came across a commercial website, CyberNet Sex, devoting an entire category to female ejaculation, FAQ included. This is highly unusual indeed. The stills were small and of pretty poor quality as usual, but some of the videoclips were quite good, if yet somewhat short. Especially one caught my interest - a girl in full figure on a bed, frantically masturbating herself to orgasm, erupting a virtual fountain, arching it four feet across the bed. A spectacular scene. If anyone has any doubts regarding the existence of female ejaculation, then this site is a good place to cast those doubts away.

This place also serves as an illustration of the fact that the cinematographers have more readily recognized the erotic potential in female ejaculation, leaving the still photographers hopelessly behind. It is my hope that this sad fact will be remedied as FE continues to work its way back into the collective consciousness, and that there will be a much stronger focus on female pleasure in the future world of erotica.

Hit Your G-Spot + Ejaculate!

by Rachel Venning

You have a G-spot. Every woman does. It is not a holy grail, a hidden treasure, or one of the lost tribes of Israel. It is simply a small spongy clump of tissue containing glands and nerve endings. It's wrapped around the urethra and gets firmer and filled with fluid when a woman is aroused. Some of us ejaculate when the G-spot is stimulated, most don't. Here are some tips to help you hit the bull's-eye.

1. Position is everything.

Imagine your vulva is a clock and your clitoris is high noon. Recline in a comfortable position and dip a finger or two in your vagina. Curl them up toward 12 and feel a few inches up the vaginal wall for a coarse and bumpy texture. Voilà! Your G-spot. The lengths of our cunts and our fingers vary so it may be too far up to reach yourself. Use a dildo or ask a friend to help. The nerves there are only sensitive to pressure, so they respond more to a steady rhythmic fucking-type motion than a stroking and gentle touch.

2. Pee first.

The sensation of being about to ejaculate feels a lot like having to pee. So, before serious fucking or G-spot exploration, make it a point to empty your bladder.

3. Work that cunt.

Well-toned pelvic muscles make your orgasms stronger, so work out! Clench and release those cunt muscles. Do a set, just like at the gym. You can do it anywhere—it makes waiting in line way more fun.

4. The masturbation curve.

Masturbate using a curved dildo to get the G-spot. The Crystal Wand is an S-shaped toy made just for this purpose. Or try the famous Hitachi Magic Wand with a G-spot attachment.

5. Come a lot.

As you devolve into that shrieking, wailing banshee of a sex pig that most of us love to be and your self-control slips away, you're more likely to let that stream squirt.

6. Read a book.

The Good Vibrations Guide to the G-spot is a superbly informative and encouraging book on the subject. Or check out the time-honored classic video, How to Female Ejaculate. Both are chock-full of inspiration.

7. Go downtown.

Go down on your lover. Then slide a few fingers in and curl them up as if to scratch your tongue from inside her. Press firmly with both tongue and fingers to squeeze that G-spot. The moment of reckoning may soon be at hand. Will you spit or will you swallow?

8. Pull out to shoot.

The bulk of a big dildo or even fingers can block off the urethra so that even though your body is ready to come, somehow it can't. So get out of the orgasm's way. This may take some practice if you have a strap-on in your lover's vagina. Hopefully she'll let you know. Remember, practice makes perfect.

9. Try the back door.

The wall between the rectum and the vagina is thin, so if you angle your hand or dildo the right way you can stimulate her G-spot through her asshole. This move wins bonus sextpert points.

10. Get a plastic sheet.

Some girls don't just dribble out a teaspoonful or two, they produce major mattress-drenching quantities, so be prepared.

11. Fuck hard.

G-spot stimulation and ejaculating orgasms happen a lot more with that pounding "I'm gonna give it to you so hard that your teeth will rattle, your will eyes roll, and you'll be begging Jesus for mercy" type sex than with anything else.

12. Vibrate that clit.

Use a vibrator on the clit at the same time. The steady hum combined with rhythmic penetration is just the ticket for a ride on the water slide.

13. Have fun.

Don't set female ejaculation up as a hurdle that you need to jump to establish yourself as a postmillennial dyke sex superstar. It ain't for everybody. And if you don't make a big wet mess, there'll be that much less laundry to do.

Rachel Venning is the cofounder of Toys in Babeland, the infamous dyke sex toy store, and the editor of babeland.com, an online resource for sex education, information, and toys.

THE G-SPOT. WHAT IS IT? WHY IS IT?

Based on the small number of women studied, it seems that the G-spot is physiologically analogous to the male prostate. The fluid we women ejaculate has been found to be chemically similar to male prostatic fluid. Many women report it to be clear and flavorless or even slightly sweet. Some say it varies considerably in both taste and quantity. A lot of research remains to be done. The G-spot may be vestigial from another evolutionary moment. Or perhaps it's what we're evolving towards (Heather has two biological mommies?). For now, its function is pleasure.

solid, formless, changing shape shifting and enlivening

She consumes life, and life inhales her

MOON HOLDING WATER

Mendocino sky is grey and thick with moisture
A foghorn engulfs my sleep with its deep, persistent moan

I know the moon is full the way I am tossed from one feeling to another

Drawn in, then out of my body

You roll to me, slide your hand between my legs still wet Desire surges breaks and pools on damp white sheets

The moon swells, spills, impossible to contain her

You said
I'll always be there and you are.

Sometimes the distance that you keep is as difficult for me to bear as proximity would be to anyone I didn't care for.

Elemental

Before moonrise, black velvet night is sprinkled with a sequin band of stars above the canyon, constellations of late summer stitched over the hazy strip of Milky Way.

Black air melts into black river and dark outlines of rock-shapes so familiar in the light.

The current's gentle flow is a caress I enter,
part of water, part of sky, feel the silken stroking of cool watery fingers on my breasts and thighs.

I swim across, press close against dark rock's worn facets, slide my hands exploring over curved planes, into cracks, within the smooth and slippery surface,

allow my toes and knees to sink into the shallow bottom sand, warm to my receptive skin, now river cooled.

My eyes see only stars and shadows, as my searching touch knows my own softness, lightless liquid river, firm textures of sand and rock.

I come into the river while the river enters me, marriage of rock and water, air and stars, meeting me in elemental union.

Female Ejaculation

Female Ejaculation is Ancient

Though Aristotle spoke eloquently of female ejaculation, and the western physician Galen dissected the paraurethral gland in the 14th century, the eastern religion of Tantra elevated it to an art and a sacred ritual. The picture (at right) is from their temple at Khajuraho, India.

They believed that sexual energy is the source of life, and that this energy is carried through the body as breath, setting every nerve on erotic fire. They developed hours-long rituals of enhanced techniques and positions to heighten the senses to their fullest. Their goal was to have long, extended orgasms that transport the couple in union to an altered state. Sex to them was like a prayer.

There is much we can borrow from Tantra in learning to awaken our g-spot and produce ejaculate. Because the g-spot is a prostate gland, it is highly sensitive, as most men can attest to. Some Tantra body workers argue that the g-spot stores sexual trauma, much like our body stores painful emotional events in tense muscles. G-spot massage techniques release this tension and its pent up emotion, thereby healing the area and restoring it to its original state of ultra sensitivity. The video, Tantric Journey to Female Orgasm, shows the first ever g-spot massage.

The Tantra practice of slowing way down to heighten one's erotic pleasure can provide deeper levels of intimacy with your loved one. Sitting on your partner's lap in intercourse while gazing into each other eyes with the sole intent of making it last as long as possible, provides the kind of stimulation and security that encourages many women to ejaculate freely and copiously.

Orgasmic Gushing: where does the fluid come from and how is it produced?

Abstract: Orgasmic Gushing: where does the fluid come from and how is it produced?, GM O'Brien, Theor Physiol 3-draft(2000) There are three sexual fluids from women: lubrication (e.g. transudation of fluid across the mucosa of the vagina, and mucus from the greater vestibular glands); female ejaculation (from paraurethral glands); and gushing. Orthodox western medicine and physiology does not yet have a standardized description or explanation for the third, gushing. The present paper proposes that the gushing fluid is a filtrate of plasma, produced by the mechanism known as transudation. This is an additional application for the transudation mechanism, after the well accepted roles in lubrication of the vagina, and in generating serous fluids. The present model proposes that the fluid released in a gush arises from the ventral wall of the vagina due to the presence there of increased surface area of mucosa, dilated arterioles, pressurized venous and lymphatic plexuses, and compression provided by muscle contraction during orgasm. Keywords: orgasm, vagina, gushing, female ejaculation, sex fluids.

Some cultures recognize three sexual fluids from women including for example Tao Zen writers Chia and Chia (1986 pp. 51-52), or Trukese and other Micronesian cultures described in works cited by Sevely (1987, p.68). Orthodox western medicine and physiology recognize two of these sexual fluids. The first, lubrication, consists of mucous secretions from the greater vestibular (formerly Bartholin's) glands and transudation of fluid across the mucosa of the vagina. The second, termed female ejaculation, consists of secretions from the paraurethral (formerly Skene's) glands released through the urethra and paraurethral ducts to the vulva at sexual climax in some women. The third is known in some circles as gushing.

Gushing is described as thin, watery fluid, with little or no colour, taste, smell or residue. The volume released seems to vary between a few drops, to tens of millilitres to a seemingly limitless volume (Sevely e.g. 126 mL., p.92). The release may occur just once during a coital session, or may occur repeatedly with a series of climax events. When large quantities are released repeatedly some women report indications of dehydration symptoms. The fluid may be released in a gush, that may be projected away from the body in a spurting stream, or may flow, seep or trickle without force. As with female ejaculation, gushing does not occur in all women, and in those who do report the phenomenon it does not occur during all sessions of intercourse i.e. it is an irregular and unpredictable biological event.

Part 6 ~~~~~ 'Finishing Up'

- Is there anything you would like to tell me regarding Prostate/G-Spot Pleasure that I have not asked?
 - ◆ "Do other Trans men experience non G-Spot stimulated ejaculation?"
 - ◆ "I don't have a lot of experience with prostate stimulation directly. Only a few partners have done it to me. It's something I'd like to explore further."
 - ◆ "At age 22 (1987) I prayed to the Goddess to change me. I was male and I'm currently non-female awaiting surgery. She said, "Change yourself!" I placed a crystal ball on my Yoni spot and felt a 'female' orgasm! Only this one. Since then I have been able to give myself orgasms simply by squeezing my Kegal muscles, or through pressure. Sometimes I have 30-40 in a session. I hope that i can continue this pleasure after gender reassignment surgery. My doctor assures me that I will."
 - ◆ "Prostate...Stimulate it and I will cum over + over + over...Multiple orgasms + cum w/ more prostate stimulation, more cum."
 - ◆ "I love the texture of a swelling G-Spot!"
 - ◆ "Prostate stimulation is the only way i can cum quickly, otherwise i have a long, slow fuse."
 - ◆ "I like both give and receive, but ejaculation is one of many sexual variations that i enjoy."
 - ◆ "I started masturbating when I was very young and didn't know what masturbation or sex was. It felt dirty at first and more gross than pleasurable but I kept doing it anyway. Then it became more pleasurable when i was a little older. By the time I became sexually active with others, my orgasms were less intense."
 - ◆ "I have only experienced female G-Spot pleasures that have left me in love with the Yoni."
 - ◆ "I can feel my G-Spot at a very particular area but getting fucked in general makes me come so much faster than anything, I don't know if it has to with my G-Spot or what."
 - ◆ "I can't ejaculate with out a hot tub! Is there any other way?"
 - ◆ "No one has ever been able to find it as well as I can. Bummer! Should I draw a map? The communication has never seemed to work right whether a woman or man."
 - ◆ "I haven't ever experienced it, but I'd like to find out more."

- ◆ "Sometimes it doesn't work at all. It never works with just touching alone, must have visuals."
- ◆ "Sorry I didn't have more Info/experience/opinion."
- ◆ "Lube + practice + achievable goals."
- ◆ "The place between anus opening and penis is nice to stroke. My clit is desensitized but I get orgasms from watching porn-rubbing on top of jeans."
- Were there any Questions that you found offensive/ inappropriate/ alienating?
 - ◆ "I didn't see the relevance of what my terms for genitals are. I can imagine you trying to correlate experience with inhibited term usage', and if I'd be wrong. Some of my terms are from my partner."
 - ◆ "No.", 3
 - ◆ "I haven't ever spoke of the topic so it's awkward for me."
 - ◆ "Absolutely not."
 - ◆ "The specific action thing."
 - ◆ "Alienating."
 - ◆ "No, but I'm pretty open. I don't really know anything about prostate stimulation. None of my male partners have been inclined to clue me in on it."
 - ◆ "Maybe I'll submit!"
 - ◆ "I question the personal questions paired with placement of address request for receiving the zine."
 - ◆ "Nah."
 - ◆ "NO :)"
 - ◆ "Yeah, sure. Anything multiple choice."
 - ◆ "I thought the questions were very well thought out."
- I plan to include photographic & literary Prostate / G-Spot erotica in the zine. If you know any artists / authors, please site them here. Submissions are welcome.
 - ◆ "Sure, E-mail me."

This Body

This body of mine
has danced till dawn, hiked to the mountain top and to river's edge.

It has rolled down sand dunes,
swam in many oceans,
skipped through spring meadows,
basked in the sun.

It was a mermaid one Halloween
Vampira another.

This body of mine has laughed so hard it almost cracked at the seams!

It rode a bicycle across the USA,
and has carried backpacks to magical hidden places.
It has strolled down ancient cobblestone streets, and fished for its dinner off a tropical island.

This body of mine loves to touch and be touched,
kiss and be kissed,
hold and be held.
Sometimes it purrs like a cat in ecstasy.

So, if you think my stomach is flabby,
my hips too wide,
or my butt too big,
You'll just have to go play with somebody else.

If you like apples
then I'll carry home an orchard.
If sky is to your liking,
I'll bundle up the skies of summer so you never need to know the winter evening anymore.

I like the fire
and so I wait for winter nights.
Apples I can take or leave...

Your body like your mind has need of going over and I intend to be a journeyman of your soft skin, for years to come.

Conclusion

I'm glad I did this questionnaire. I've learned much along the way. If I were to do it again, I have many questions I'd add, and it seems that some questions might be best asked in an interview. I think that much of the results are valuable to witnessing some diversity of preference, and experience; however, I think what it mostly shows is the general lack of understanding of our own bodies. By far the majority of people that filled out this questionnaire had never thought extensively about the topic. Specifically, in Part 5, On 'Female' Erectile Tissue/ Internal Pleasure Question 1) Have you experienced and 'Female' erectile tissue inside the vagina? I think that every answer of "Yes" is mis-marked. The following question asks for clarification and the responses reflect a lack of understanding or experience regarding 'Female' Erectile Tissue; Unlike the rest of the questionnaire responses, in which I have complete confidence that they reflect understanding and true representation of experience and preference.

Thanks again to all that filled out this questionnaire. It enables me to move forward in this very important area of research. - Liberty, 3/03
